

Chic Critique

BEAUTY PRODUCT REVIEWS FOR THE MODERN WOMAN

La Dolce Diva Body Products

La Dolce Diva knows how to treat a lady right! When they say luxurious, they're not kidding. And if they eye buys they had me at helllloo!

I used the Tiramisu Body Wash, Body Polisher & Body Butter. Sometimes with products that have a "rich" smells (vs a fruity smell) they turn sour on me. I can honestly say they held their true fragrance. I was very pleased.

The Wash is a thick heavenly smell. It doesn't produce a huge lather, just a nice thick wash that leaves your skin clean but not dry.

The Body Polish has very fine ground up walnut in it. Not abrasive in the slightest. The product itself is fairly thick. I've never used a body polish like this, but I know I will be again!

The Body Butter is a cross between a crisco-type form (super thick) and a body cream.

And if you are wondering if the bottles really come with the jewel on a ribbon (removable), they do. That's the helllooo part.

Overall, the best thing about these products are that they stay true to their fragrance or get even BETTER (I tried the Strawberry body butter sample as well and I thought uh oh, this might not go well and within 10 minutes it had completely won me over. In fact it just may be my new favorite body product of all time and that's not an easy thing to do, since I'm stuck in a rut).

The worst thing? They're not edible.